The markets were rocked in March. In the US, President Trump's various statements blew hot and cold. More tariffs have been announced and the countries affected have begun to respond, which could mean the start of a Global Trade War. At the time of writing, Mr. Trump has already given his Liberation Day speech, we're aware of the tariffs that will be imposed, but we'll wait until the next monthly commentary to talk about them. Unsure of how these taxes will impact the US economy, equity markets corrected as inflation expectations rose while growth expectations fell. Against this backdrop, the S&P 500 fell 5.6%, while the gap between Europe and the US widened, with the Stoxx 600 down only 3.7% and our fund down 7.0%.

Although Mr. Trump's announcements were the factor with the greatest impact on the markets, the Central Banks also had their meeting and played their part. The SNB continued to cut rates, now reaching 0.25%, the ECB also cut rates by 25 basis points, while the FED, operating in a more than uncertain context, decided to keep rates at the same levels.

In the US, although analysts fear for growth, interest rates remained relatively stable, with the 2-year falling slightly and the 10-year remaining at the same levels. Credit spreads remained almost unchanged on the Investment Grade side, while on the High Yield side, spreads rebounded slightly, although they are still a long way from levels that might be considered worrying. In Europe, it's a different story. After the elections in Germany, the new government passed a EUR 500Bn spending plan to support the Defense and Energy transition sectors. This massive spending plan pushed rates up, although they gave back some of this rise at the end of the month. Credit spreads in Europe remained almost unchanged, demonstrating a degree of investor confidence.

At portfolio level, almost all sectors were down during the month. Gaming was our best sector, with a flat performance of -0.06%, and our second-best sector was Clean Transportation, which returned just -2.3%. Chinese stocks were the main contributors to the fund's performance. In Gaming, the rise of Tencent offset the fall of Take-Two, while in Clean Transportation, the rise of BYD offset the fall of Aptiv. Healthcare and Cybersecurity were the two worst-performing sectors in March, with returns of -10% and -10.4% respectively. These performances are due to the market correction, mainly on US stocks and richly-valued companies.

In terms of stocks, unsurprisingly Tencent and BYD were both in the lead in March. Both stocks benefited from the trend of investors moving towards Chinese tech after DeepSeek was revealed to the general public. BYD also benefited from a positive news flow with its new chargers, which can charge 400km of range in just 5 minutes. The worst performing stocks this month were Waga Energy and Datadog, down 25% and 15% respectively. There is no news to justify this performance on Waga, but we suspect a capital increase is likely. As for Datadog, it is suffering the wrath of the market regarding AI and US stocks.

For the time being, we've decided to maintain our current allocation. During periods of market stress, we prefer to keep our portfolio intact, as we're still convinced about our stocks. Once the dust has settled, we'll make any changes we deem necessary.
