Rating Breakdown

The second quarter of 2025 ended with new all-time highs for equity markets. Despite ongoing concerns over tariffs, the level of U.S. debt and an increasingly tense geopolitical backdrop, U.S. investors continue to place their trust in the resilience of their economy, thereby supporting markets. The S&P 500 rose by 5.08% in June, while the Stoxx 600 shed -1.19%. The German 10-year bond rose 10 basis points to 2.60%, while the US 10-year bond fell 17 basis points to 4.22%.

So far, macroeconomic data appears to support investor optimism. PMI indicators continue to fluctuate between expansion and contraction on both sides of the Atlantic, without signaling any clear deterioration. Inflation continues to trend downward despite the 10% tariff imposed by the U.S. and a weakening dollar throughout the quarter, which should have made imports more expensive. The labor market remains healthy, reinforcing the view that concerns triggered by the "Liberation Day" announcements may have been overstated. However, the full impact of the tariffs has yet to be felt in the economy, and further deterioration in the coming months cannot be ruled out. Additionally, the July 9 deadline for negotiations is fast approaching and so far, only one agreement has been signed with the UK. Yet markets appear unbothered by this timeline and continue to bet on the so-called "TACO trade". Donald Trump has signed the OBBBA, and budget deficits will increase in the foreseeable future, on top of already dire forecasts. Will the Tariff bring more money than expected and boost economic growth in the US? There is no rebellion from the bond market.

On the Central Bank front, the ECB cut rates once again, bringing them down to 2%. Its easing cycle appears to be nearing completion, with one final rate cut priced in by year-end. Terminal rates are now expected to settle around 1.75%. Switzerland also lowered its rates back to 0%, and nearly half of analysts now anticipate a move into negative territory before year-end. In the U.S., the Fed has kept rates steady despite mounting pressure from the President for Chair Powell to begin easing. Given the economy's remarkable resilience, the Fed currently lacks justification for a rate cut and is likely waiting for signs of labor market weakness before acting.

In this environment, the Weisshorn Global Bonds EUR sub-fund gained 0.48% in June, bringing its performance for the first six months of the year to +1.63%.

This performance is clearly respectable given that the majority of our duration exposure is in Europe and that rates have tended to rise slightly. The tightening of Credit Spreads also contributed positively to performance. Given that we have more than 12% exposure to USD bonds, it should also be noted that our decision to hedge 100% of our exposure to the greenback has paid off since the beginning of the year, allowing us to neutralize the negative impact of the dollar on the portfolio.

Our only reallocation came from an early redemption that we reinvested. Our view has not changed: we currently favor European duration over US one, the average duration of the portfolio stands at 5.35 at the end of June.
